How Exactly Do Vitamins and Minerals Work in the Human?

Vitamins and minerals are essential for life. They are the “keys” that make our bodies work. At one time vitamins were believed to be vital amines, which is how they got their name. Vitamins and minerals are small molecules that fit into much larger molecules called enzymes. These enzymes function as the factories of our bodies. Some of these enzymes break down incoming materials (food) into its raw components, while others take these newly acquired raw components and build them into materials that are useful for our own bodies, such as hair and skin and hormones and new enzymes, etc.

Ideally all the vitamins we need are provided in the foods that we eat. However, they are very fragile and are destroyed easily when exposed to light and air and heat. It is extremely rare for vitamins to survive in processed/packageged foods. And, it is common for vitamins to be lost when foods are cooked.

Because vitamins and minerals are vital for life and because they are lost in most of the foods we eat these days, many people have decided to take a multiple vitamin/mineral supplement on a regular basis. There are a couple of factors to consider when selecting a good supplement. One choice to consider is “natural” versus laboratory-prepared vitamins. Vitamins link up with their enzymes much like a person shakes hands when greeting another person. So, a vitamin is like a hand. It comes in many forms. There are right hands and left hands and open hands and closed hands. The hands that fit perfectly for hand shaking are the open, right hands. The other forms don't work as well. In nature the less useful vitamin forms are filtered out, leaving only the useful ones to do the work (like the open, right hands). In the laboratory all the

POWER'S WAR

the Oracle School District and the Oracle Historical Society.

The film is about the infamous Power Shootout in the Galiuro Mountains in 1918. The gun battle took place when four lawmen traveled to the remote cabin to arrest John and Tom Power for draft dodging. What happened next is a matter of conjecture and controversy.

After years of research by noted historians and interviews of surviving family members and people who know of the controversy, the film attempts to answer many of the questions and dispel some of the myths that surround this legendary story.

Power's War is directed and produced by Cameron Trejo. It features Heidi Osselaer, Eduardo Pagan, Marshal Trimble, Don Deder, Martin Kempton, Millie Barnes, Eduardo Pagan, Mark Weitz, Jeff Robenalt, David Berman, Paul Hietter, Barbara Brooks Wolfe and Thomas Cobb. It is narrated by actor John Slattery of the television series Mad Men.

The Junior National Honor Society of Mountain Vista School will be operating a concession stand where popcorn, soda, candy and other goodies will be for sale.

Admission is free, donations will be accepted.

In May of this year joint fact finding meetings were held with TRIAD, OWN (Oracle Women's Network), Catalina Community Services, United Way of Pinal County and pastors/representatives from four of the seven listed churches in Oracle. The purpose of these meetings was to identify services that are available in our community but, perhaps more importantly, services that are not publicized or available that we hope can be addressed.

Local teens get new clothes thanks to SBCO

Once again the Teen Closet program sponsored by SaddleBrooke Community Outreach (SBCO) had a very rewarding and successful shopping spree for selected teens in July.

Teen Closet is a continuation of the Kids' Closet program. This year there was a total of 40 students participating, 25 of whom were returning students and 20 new students. Twelve were from Catalina and eight from Oracle. Of the returning students there were four who graduated this past spring and participated in their last shopping experience to assist them as they start their next stage of life in continuing their education. The shopping trip this year was at Target and Ross Dress for Less stores.

School administrators from Ironwood Ridge and Canyon Del Oro High Schools select the students based on need. To participate in the program, the teens must have good school attendance, maintain a "C" average, meet with their counselor and complete six hours of community service. Once selected for the program, if the students meet these requirements they may participate in the program throughout their high school years.

Each student is paired with a community volunteer who helps the teen stay within a given budget. All have a good time as the students prove to be savvy, discriminating shoppers who work their own personal style and needs into their school's requirement codes. Many of the paired volunteer/students couplings request to shop together at the next Teen Closet shopping expedition. One of the couples, Melody and Jim Weeks of SaddleBrooke, claim that being a shopper for Teen Closet is one of their favorite SaddleBrooke activities. They marvel at the student's abilities to overcome great obstacles to succeed and thrive. It is a rewarding time for all participants.

HEALTH ISSUES

various forms of the vitamin are preserved. This dilutes the effectiveness of those pills. An example of this is found with Vitamin E. There are many forms of Vitamin E. The d-alpha-tocopherol form is the dominant one used in nature. Most laboratory-produced Vitamin E is mixed with all of its forms and designated dl-alpha-tocopherol. So, look for the "d" form when shopping for Vitamin E to assure optimal benefit.

Now, what about minerals? Minerals rarely exist on their own in the body. They are usually connected to carrier proteins. I think of these carrier proteins as the trucks that carry in a supply of minerals. And, as I am fond of saying, "Some truck drivers know where they are going, and some don't." Some of the better carrier proteins these days are citric acid (citrate), malic acid (malate), and picolinic acid (picolinate), as in "calcium citrate" or "zinc picolinate."

Another factor to consider when selecting a supplement is that capsules are less likely than tablets to have added ingredients such as binders and coloring. These added ingredients are usually considered somewhat toxic by the body and need extra energy to process.

So, whether you are addressing a specific condition or simply supplementing to compensate for a deficiency in our food supply, when selecting vitamins and minerals look for clues that will indicate a good product. Look for d-alpha-tocopherol Vitamin E and/or calcium citrate and/or zinc picolinate on the bottle. These will give you an idea of the overall integrity of the company you're dealing with and give you optimal benefit from your dollars spent. *Dr. Michael Miles' Clinic is located at 15601 N. Oracle Piano Society presents dinner concert and wine tasting at its new home in Oracle

“Ravel Soiree,” an evening of fine cuisine, wine tasting, and an in-the-round multimedia piano concert performed by Dr. Stephen Cook will introduce the public to the new home of Oracle Piano Society on Saturday, October 10.

The four-course dinner, followed by selected wines paired with musical selections and poetry recitations, is a capital fundraising event to support the society’s purchase of the former Masonic lodge in Oracle. The society was founded three years ago and is widely known for presenting high-caliber classical music performance events at other venues.

Dr. Cook, founder and artistic director, will perform on the Baldwin concert grand, paying homage to the brilliant compositions of Maurice Ravel with Pavane pour une Infante defunte, Sonatine, and Gaspard de la nuit. Recitations of poems by Aloysius Bertrand will accompany the program.

Tickets are available only in advance for either the dinner, wine and concert at $100 per person, or for just the concert and wine tasting at $30 per person. Dinner will begin at 6 p.m., the concert at 7:45 p.m. Information is at 623-295-9677; tickets are available at Oracle Patio Cafe, 270 W. American Ave. Patio Cafe chef David Raneri is preparing the menu.

The 36,000 square foot masonry building with high wood ceiling over the performance hall and theater seats, a spacious lobby, modern kitchen, and large parking area is located just off American Ave. at 700 E. Kingston St. The non-profit society is purchasing it for $200,000 and plans to develop it as an Oracle community arts center. With final sale set for early next year, another capital fundraiser concert is planned for November. Information is posted on the website: www.OraclePianoSociety.org

Tickets to the Jim Click-sponsored “Millions for Tucson Charities Raffle” for a new Ford Mustang will be available for purchase. The society will keep proceeds of tickets it sells.
